Twenty-Third Year, No. 48 — Nevada City (Nevada County) California, Friday, November 24, 1950

CITY'S FIFTH WETTEST NOVEMBER IN CENTURY BRINGS 15.57 RAIN

With seven days yet to go in this month, November with 15.57 inches of precipitation is the fifth wettest November in Nevada City's recorded history.

Nine days of almost continuous rainfall before the sun finally broke through Tuesday morning brought all but .05 inch of the rain. That amount fell the first day of the month.

Although damage was widespread throughout the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, in parts of the Sierras, and in western Nevada, no damage was reported in Nevada City.

Deer creek and its tributaries were running high but higher banks were ample to contain the torrents.

Tahoe national forest headquarters in an early survey of damage to their roads, bridges and campgrounds estimated loss at $100,000.

Highway 20 was cut for a few hours late Saturday when a slide blocked traffic south of the junction with highway 40.

Traffic over highway 40 was cut Saturday afternoon when the South Yuba river overflowed at several places where the highway crosses it. Traffic was restored Wednesday morning. The highway is still cut east of Truckee and Reno traffic is being detoured by Carson City.

Highway 49 was cut east of Downieville and at last reports has not been reopened.

W. W. Delameter, who lives at the Edwards Crossing of South Yuba river, reported the river was highest Monday evening but when the rain stopped it rapidly receded. Delameter reported logs three and four feet in diameter and several years accumulation of driftwood made the storm sound like a battlefield as the big logs crashed against the rocks in the stream.

Greatest damage to the county road system was the loss of a bridge at the Dutch Flat crossing of the Bear river in the You Bet area. Residents of the Ridge road reported the road completed in October went to pieces during the rain and now is in worse condition than before construction work was started.

Fred Bush, weather reporter at Pioneer park, said the previous Novembers that exceed the current month are 1864, 17.05; 1875, 16.56; 1885, 21.55, and 1926, 15.99. Average rainfall for November is 5.56, according to Bush.

ILLEGAL YULE TREE CUTTING CHARGED

Victor Eugene Mace, 41, San Leandro, faces a charge of illegally cutting Christmas trees on government land for the second time in two years.

Arrested last week by Forest Ranger F. R. Sodolski for cutting red fir near Webber lake, Mace has been released from the Sierra county jail after posting $1,000. He entered a plea of not guilty before Justice of the Peace Alden N. Johnson in Sierraville justice court.

Mace was fined $4,500 by a federal court in 1948 after pleading guilty to a similar charge.

NEVADA COUNTY LEADS STATE IN RATIO FARM BUREAU MEMBERSHIP

With an enrollment of 93 percent of the individual farms in its borders, Nevada county carried home a huge loving cup for the highest ratio of farm bureau members to the number of farms in the county from the 32nd annual convention of the California Farm Bureau Federation held in Berkeley last weekend.

C. J. Rolph, Jr., Nevada county delegate to the convention, received the cup and brought it back to Nevada county with him.

Honorable mention in this department went to Trinity, 89 percent; Yuba, 85 percent; and Modoc, 64 percent.

Garden Grove, Orange county, won a loving cup for the largest membership in the state—653.

Tustin, also in Orange county, was second with 581, and Selma, in Fresno county, was third with 521 members.

County farm bureaus receiving special certificates from the national Farm Bureau Federation for reaching twice in succession their quota of memberships included Amador, Butte, Del Norte, Glenn, Placer, Sacramento, San Benito, San Diego, San Joaquin, Solano and Tuolumne.

The radio interview was about Trip Teaser No. 3, which deals with the Children's Fairyland in Oakland. Fairyland is a merchant sponsored playground for children which features many children's fairyland characters and buildings.

Trip Teaser No. 1, which was released July 1 by the two Nevada City men, is already out of print in the first edition. No. 1 covers Highway 49 from Nevada City to Downieville.

HIGH SCHOOL PTA OPPOSES DRAFT OF HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Opposition to the drafting of youths 17 to 21 years old before they have completed high school was recorded last week at a meeting of the Nevada City High School Parent-Teachers Association.

Included in the action was the provision that any boy taking reserve training in college be exempted from universal military training. Also recommended was a choice by any youth drafted to select the branch of service in which he wished to serve.

The action was taken at a turkey dinner meeting prepared by the senior mothers and served in the high school gymnasium.

The turkeys were baked by Mrs. Kent Walker, Mrs. Douglas Atkins and Mrs. H. J. Ray. Mrs. Louise Rankin was chairman of the dinner committee which included Mrs. Leonard Lageson, Mrs. John Thiessen, Mrs. Dorothy Glenn, Mrs. Carl Foote and Mrs. Luella Anderson.

Rev. Frank Buck, rector of the Emmanuel Episcopal church of Grass Valley, spoke on "Home and Family Life." He told the group that children should be taught religion at home and that teaching true traits of character should be done by example.

WASHINGTON EMPTIED IN DAM BREAK SCARE

Apparently a practical joker with a macabrish sense of humor went on the rampage Monday night along with the Yuba and other rivers of California.

Two or three telephone calls by an individual who represented himself as speaking for the P.G.&E. superintendent alarmed the community by stating the Spaulding dam was expected to go out and advised flight to a higher level.

Most of the town evacuated to Nevada City, except Mrs. Carl Neasham, proprietor of the store. Mrs. Neasham decided to await definite word but intended to remain awake all night prepared for a quick getaway. Despite her vigilance she admitted she fell asleep.

Larry Farrell, district manager of the P.G.&E., said there was no danger, but if there had been, the company would have notified the authorities first and immediately afterward, the residents.

PENN VALLEY MAN IS KILLED BY TRACTOR

William Jean Stickels, 23, was instantly killed Saturday morning on the Willow Brook Farm, Penn Valley, when a small tractor turned over on him.

According to his wife, Nancy, who was in the ranch home about 150 feet from the accident, Stickels was attempting to pull their automobile from the mud. The tractor reared over backward pinning Stickels underneath.

Stickels was a native of Bakersfield, and a veteran of army service in World War II.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two children, Nancy and Tommy; parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stickels, Wawona, and sister, Mrs. Isabelle Von Passel, Arlington.

MOTOR CORPORATION SUED FOR $225,000 BY MR. AND MRS. TUMULLA

Damage suit for $225,000 was filed in Nevada county superior court Monday against the Kaiser-Fraser Sales Corporation, Willow Run, Mich.; Henry J. Kaiser Motors, and Jack Greenagle, Grass Valley, by Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Tumulla, Gold Flat.

In their complaint the Tumullas charge that after spending a period of two years building this territory as Kaiser-Fraser dealers they were put out of business by the manufacturer through refusal to deliver cars for sale.

The Tumullas allege that despite a still valid contract, the manufacturer permitted Greenagle to operate in the Grass Valley area and furnished him with new automobiles, including the new "Henry J."

The complaint asks the court to issue an order prohibiting the Kaiser companies from furnishing Greenagle with automobiles for re-sale in this area and enjoining Greenagle from selling any more in this area, and also to order an accounting of profits realized by Greenagle from sales of Kaiser-Fraser cars in this district.

Tumulla was cleared Wednesday afternono of charges arising out of a $7,294.87 check given by him to Greenagle, in connection with business transactions between them. Greenagle had Tumulla arrested last July, after payment of check was stopped. Tumulla was freed on $7,500 bail pending trial.

After a jury was chosen in the Yuba county superior court, a conference was held with the trial judge, as a result of which the Yuba county deputy district attorney moved to dismiss the charges on the ground that justice would be best subserved.

After questioning Tumulla and his attorneys, the judge agreed, and thereupon dismissed the case, released the jury and exonerated bail.

NORTH FORK RAMPAGES IN DOWNIEVILLE AREA

The North Fork of the Yuba river went on the rampage over the weekend during the height of the storm that brought a huge toll to California in destroyed highways, farmlands and homes.

The South Fork of the North Fork was reported to be 20 feet above normal when it crested on Monday evening.

The proposed new academy is to be patterned after the military academy at West Point, N. Y., and the naval academy at Annapolis, Md. Congress has yet to authorize the academy.

The site selection board started Monday on an inspection tour that will take them to all 29 sites in the country. California sites in addition to Camp Beale, are Santa Rosa, Napa and March Field.

Congressional hearings on the establishment of the academy is expected to be held early in the session which opens Jan. 3.

The air force announcement added that a Chicago architectural firm, Root and Birurgee, is to begin a detailed survey of the three to six sites that will be chosen by that time for further study.

Mrs. Thelma P. Headley filed suit Monday for $3,638 in Nevada county superior court against M. M. Headley charging failure to filfull terms of a contract regarding property settlement in the sale of Headley's garage here in 1948.

According to the complaint, Mrs. Headley states the terms of the contract provide that in case of default the defendant would pay her $150 a month until she received a total of $5,500 plus six percent interest.

Mrs. Headley alleges that no payments have been made since January, 1948, and that there is now due and payable $3,278 plus payments on a real estate loan totaling $360.

FIRST CASE OF POLIO IN 15 MONTHS STRIKES IN NEVADA COUNTY

The first case of polio reported in Nevada county in 15 months struck in Grass Valley on the heels of closing the polio center. Mrs. Gudie Rubke, wife of Rev. Walter Rubke, pastor of the St. Paul's Lutheran church, Chicago Park and the Grace Lutheran church, Grass Valley, was moved to Children's hospital, San Francisco, Tuesday to undergo therapy for poliomyelitis.

Mrs. Rubke has been seriously ill at Jones Memorial hospital for several days.

The polio center, which operated for 14 months in the Veterans Memorial building, in Grass Valley, will reopen for one day only, Saturday, Dec. 16, when Miss Barbara Newman, physiotherapist who operated the center, will take a final check on cases she has been handling.

In January, Dr. Dollivan Fuiks, Sacramento, will be in Nevada county to check the cases, and his recommendations at that time will govern the action of the Nevada county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, according to Chairman Ray Hodge.

During the 14 months the center operated, it provided 2,333 treatments including home visits.

Immediately after the opening of the center nine children polio victims were visited by Miss Newman. Teachers volunteer to keep them abreast their school work.

Of the patients treated, who ranged in age from two to 46, 62 were polio cases. The remainder had suffered other crippling injuries, diseases and involvements.

VARNEY NAMED PWA LIAISON OFFICER

Forrest Varney, who was fired as manager of the Nevada Irrigation District last Sept. 8 by the NID board of directors, has been appointed acting liaison officer between station officials in the Public Works Administration at China Lake, and the engineering department at Pasadena. China Lake is the U. S. navy ordnance testing station for rocket and guided missiles, located in north Mojave desert.

Varney is contact man for various parties and agencies engaged in preparation and development of plans and specifications, with some of the funds being provided by the atomic energy commission.

China Lake is eight miles east of Inyokern, and covers 1,000 acres of desert and mountains, is an entire city of over 10,000 built by the navy with markets, theatres, library, postoffice, stores, recreation, schools and housing for single men and families. Mel Farley, formerly of Hennessy elementary school, Grass Valley, is high school principal.

"We wish the community the best of success in the future and trust that something which we have done might be of lasting benefit. The future can be of great good, but it must be understood that to make a greater community it will mean much sacrifice and a lot of work on the part of the people of Nevada and Placer counties. There will be nothing easy about further advancement, but it will be well worth the effort which it will demand.

"The one thing which I envision for the future is that Harmony Ridge will be another 'Pollock Pines' of highway 50. With water on the ridge and into the valleys to the north and into Scotts Flat reservoir on the south that area can be made to be one of the most attractive summer and possibly winter residential areas of the state. Imagine a pipeline down the highway from White Cloud camp. With pressure down the entire ridge."

The December call will be the fourth since reactivation of the selective service act.

We Have the Same Stars by Which to Guide!

Yesterday we Americans gathered around the festive boards to observe a day of reverent humility, hallowed for eternity by the sacrifices of our Pilgrim forefathers.

Thanksgiving day is no ordinary day—It is an ageless shrine for every patriot. It is the day that stands as a thundering rebuke to those who say there can be changing standards of integrity or a double standard of morality for individual and government. This day does not mark the beginning of the belief that freedom is worth any sacrifice. Neither does it serve as an end to that belief.

Thanksgiving day is not a day of rededication. It was dedicated and consecrated for all time three centuries ago by those who died that we might walk as free men. It is rather for us the living, to borrow a phrase, to dedicaate our lives to the rekindling in the hearts of our countrymen the noblest flames of Pilgrim idealism on the altar of patriotism.

Three centuries after the landing of the Pilgrims historians still speculate why they chose the rock-bound New England shores, far removed from their original destination. One theory says the captain of the Mayflower was bribed by English colonial interests to put the Pilgrims ashore at Plymouth Rock, and that on arrival at Plymouth he argued them into staying.

Like the Mayflower that was blown off its course and anchored in a strange harbor, our ship of state has been menaced by unscrupulous men who have urged us to steer by something more modern than the true stars that guided the Pilgrims.

Scheming men have tried to bring us, like the Mayflower's captain, into false harbors of foreign ideologies not of our choosing. We have been endangered by cowardly navigators who would run with the winds of popular opinion than fight against the storm to stay on course.

Our Ship of State wallows in the trough of debt, buffeted by the winds of special privilege and the pressures of vociferous minorities. It drifts perilously close to the reef of disaster marking the belief that the government should support the people rather than the people support only enough government to govern.

There is no need to retell the story that everyone knows—the story of that terrifying, storm tossed, miserably wretched 66 day voyage of the tiny Mayflower, the heartbreak of two return trips to England, the sickness and misery as the mountainous seas smashed at the tiny vessel.

We can imagine the stark terror that swept the seasick company when they learned that the storm had cracked the Mayflower's main beam. But—God's hand was on that ship. An artisan on board was bringing with him to a brave new world a giant iron screw. With that device and the strong arms of stout hearted Pilgrims the beam of the tiny Mayflower was forced back straight into place.

We must resolve today to be instruments of strengthening and straightening the main beam of our Ship of State so that it can withstand the stresses and strains of the centuries to come.

It is time that we resolve to work and live by the same true stars of ideals that guided the Pilgrims. They do not belong only to the emblazoned pages of history. So long as men's hearts still burn with the belief that a man has the right to individual liberty and the right to worship as he chooses, then the Pilgrim spirit still lives.

Before the Pilgrims set foot on New England, they first met in the crude and dingy cabin of the Mayflower. It was there they laid for all time the cornerstone of all the republican institutions of America. It was in that tiny cabin that the first town meeting was held.

It was there that the hand of God helped the Pilgrims write the immortal Mayflower compact that still lights up the sky of the world with the nobility of its purpose. And when the Pilgrims set foot on Plymouth rock, they knelt and gave thanks to God.

Cynics could say "for what?" Truly it took stout hearts to face that waste of sand hills and sea grass, briars and swamps, wind bent trees and unknown savages. The Pilgrims faced realities. We seek out the snug harbors of Utopia where we can avoid all struggle while we sniff the deadly opium that deludes us into thinking we can get something in life for nothing. We are content to dream of the living the world owes us, while we sneer at those who prize honesty and thrift.

It was a desolate sight that greeted those Displaced Persons of three centuries ago. There were no government officials on hand to inspect or greet them. No park benches or firewood had been placed there by a thoughtfully considerate parks department. No low cost housing project had been provided. No inspectors were on hand to demand that they work not more than 40 hours or for less than 75 cents an hour. There were no union organizers to preach that seniority was more important than ability.

Those D.P.'s of 1620 had to survive or perish by their own efforts. And perish half of them did that first cruel winter. But that price of freedom was not too high, for it is to their eternal glory that none turned back for England the next year.

The Pilgrims came here with the same burning desire we echo today—the wish for freedom and security. But they sought the true security of real freedom—not the prison type security where independence of action is forfeited. They could have had that by remaining in England.

Thanksgiving Day is more than just a monument to the Pilgrims who crossed from the Old to the New World. It serves as a monument to the American way of life—it serves as a monument to the failure of Communism in America.

It was the love of freedom, not the lust for money, that impelled the Pilgrims to uproot their lives from England.. They matched their lives against the funds raised by the 70 merchants of England. Thanksgiving Day is a monument to the American way which is based on the striving for individual freedom and individual gain.

It was in Plymouth Colony, too, that Communism failed. Despite the threat of starvation, the share and share alike system couldn't produce enough food. But when Governor Bradford assigned a parcel of land to each family then corn was raised beyond the wildest hopes.

In the words of the Pilgrim governor, "the women now went willingly into the fields and took their little ones with them to set corn, which before would allege weakness and inability, whom to have compelled would have been thought great tyranny and oppression."

If we today are to be the instruments of strengthening the main beam of our Ship of State, we must now re-dedicate our lives to those noble purposes of the Mayflower Compact. They are: 1. To the glory of God. 2. The advancement of the Christian faith. 3. Frame just and equal laws. 4. For the general good of all peoples. This is a noble constitution for any nation—a charter for One World.

The names of the Pilgrims are emblazoned in gold on the immortal pages of history because they had the courage to dare. The seed they bore of religious freedom and popular government bore fruit upon the shores of a new land. We too can plant today the seed which will bear abundantly of the rich fruit of liberty and new hope for generations yet unborn.

The rock of Plymouth is the signpost of a successful civilization, the marker that says this was the route taken by others who trod safely on before . . . that a successful civilization found this the right way to go. The trail blazed by the Pilgrims tells us that this is the route. But it also warns there can be no painless road to freedom or security.

We just don't buy freedom. We just don't get freedom even by fighting for it. We only gain freedom by living it. It takes not only raw courage to do that—it takes rare courage—not the explosive type of unreasoning courage, but the rarest kind—sustained courage.

These are the days that try the souls of men, to borrow another phrase. Like the Pilgrims we can make no retreat from our rendezvous with destiny on the outcome of which depends the fate of our children and our children's children.

Thanksgiving Day will stand as a monument to liberty just so long as we in America have the courage to keep alive the principles of the Pilgrims. If we trade the precious birthright bequeathed by them to us for a mess of pottage from Washington, then it would crumble to dust as a civilization sinks into the morass of failure.

We must maintain the dignity of the individual. We must fight the encroachment of bigness in government, business and unions upon the liberties of the individual.

Let us this Thanksgiving Day, join in a rededication to strengthen and straighten the main beam of our great Ship of State so that it can sail majestically on through the oceans of time.

If we look up, we find the same true stars that guided the Pilgrims to this new land. Like the Pilgrims, not all of us will survive in the annals of history, but that in itself is not important. Our lives will be justified if the principles we believe to be right and true survive.

We must re-kindle in our hearts the simple faith that sustained the Pilgrims and cherish liberty of mankind above all worldly treasures. Let us lift our hearts with confidence to the dawn of a new glory for America.

The 330 years that have elapsed since the Pilgrims stepped ashore on a stern and rock-bound coast are but a pinpoint on the panorama of time, but it is a landmark in the history of humanity. Because the record of what they achieved here is written for eternity.

If we, this generation of Americans, can once again rekindle for America the fires of freedom and a yearning for true liberty, then we will not have lived in vain.

Sargent's Story

There is more machinery at work in Grass Valley than in any equal extent of territory in the county, if not in the state, outside of the cities. There are a number of excellent sawmills, and the lumber trade is extensive, and an excellent flouring mill, but the place is probably more noted for its quartz mining than for anything else. The quartz men of Grass Valley have shown their "faith by works," in an unwavering pertinacity of adhering to a once dubious branch of business through immense expense and apparently insurmountable difficulties. During the year 1852, owing to the water in the hills, a large expense was incurred to drain the claims; and taking the entire revenue and expenses for the year, not a dollar was made out of the business. But 1853 gave better encouragement, and the business has been good, with little fluctuation, ever since.

October 2, 1851, we had occasion to remark of Grass Valley: "We think of but one place of Upper California (San Jose) which will compare in pleasantness with Grass Valley. The dwellings among the trees, the gentle swelling of the hills, the beautiful broad valleys, and the air of mixed primitiveness and business hustle, all go to make up a delightful spot.

"In addition to all thih, heavy pulsations of the many quartz mills that are tirelessly laboring day and night, save on the Sabbath, give an air of permanence and solidity to the town unlike the many ephemeral, mine-crated towns that have arisen, prospered and become deserted in California within a few years. The improvements taking place in Grass Valley are all of a solid nature; handsome houses are being prepared for the coming winter. There are many families already settled in the town, and more are coming, and when the pleasant harmonizing influences of female society are more largely added to Grass Valley, the sun will not shine on a more desireable residence.

"The miracles that enterprise can accomplish have no better example than at this town. Two or three years ago the echoes of its woods were awakened only by the wild cry of bird and beast, or of the almost equally wild and degraded Indian. The riches of its ravines first attracted attention, then the treasure locked up in quartz, requiring skill and energy to obtain it. The demand created the supply, and as a result, powerful machinery is in motion, a permanent town has grown up, and the wilderness has changed to a cheerful and crowded haunt of men. We have frequently visited the quartz mills in Grass Valley, but never without a renewed impression that, without stir or ostentation, in the midst of the mountains, and far from the theatre of former achievements, a work has been going in which in rapidity of execution, grandness of result, and above all in practical usefulness, throws into the shade many which have been boasted as the trophies of centuries."

In placer mining, Grass Valley has not been behind many other prominent localities. The present prospects are, that both quartz and placer mining will be there as permanent as elsewhere. It has a peaceful and laborious population, and through the recent fire has entailed much individual loss, as a community, it continues to advance.

The first ditch that supplied Grass Valley with water was the "Centreville," dug in the fall and winter of 1850 by Ormsby and others, taking the water of Wolf creek. The second was in the fall of 1851, from the same course, by Day, Fouse & Co. "Murphy's ditch" was dug by Murphy, O'Connor & Co., in 1851; the "Empire ditch" in 1852 by Whiting and others, both from Wolf Creek and its branches. The "Union ditch," was constructed in 1852, by Phelps & Gephart, from Little Deer creek.

The "Grass Valley Slide" is the site of good deep diggings immediately north of the town, and within the corporate limits. The lead was discovered in the fall of 1851, by Mathew Patterson. Much excitement attended its discovery. It is now being washed from the surface down by hydraulic hose. West from this, on the opposite side of a ravine, is the "Alta Hill" lead, much richer than the "Slide," upon which one shaft is sunk 210 feet and worked with profit. Northwest of the town are two other deep leads—the Lola Montez and Jenny Lind. East of the town is a deep lead known as the "Howard Hill"; the three latter cannot be worked for want of water.

The first brick building was built by Adams & Co., in the fall of 1854, a handsome two-story building. There are now many brick buildings in the town, taking the place of the wooden ones, destroyed by the recent fire.

40 PERCENT DOE KILL RECOMMENDED BY GAME UNIT MAN

A 40 percent reduction of deer population in Nevada county by doe killing, increased brush burning and range improvements are recommended by Russ Henry, of the state fish and game commission, who has been studying the crop damage by deer in this area for the past year.

Henry made his recommendations at a meeting of the Nevada County Conservation Council at Veterans Memorial building in Grass Valley Tuesday evening.

The council, presided over by Leon Sanford, recommended in addition, a later hunting season for deer.

Henry reported deer damage to approximately 1,500 fruit trees in the county and a consumption of about a third of the crop. Irrigated pastures and vineyards have also been heavily damaged. Damage was principally in Chicago Park district although parts of western Nevada county suffered.

Henry estimated deer population at present at 2,300.

The council also recommended that some of the license money of sportsmen be spent on range improvements as is done with the fishing license money.

Howard Smith, Tahoe national forest, proposed a recommendation that deer season be opened the last weekend in September and continue for five weekends to minimize fire hazards.

How to win a woman

There are six vitally important assets toward winning a woman:

★ RESPONSIBILITY
★ SOCIAL OBLIGATIONS

Included in the asset of salesmanship for the businessman who is out to win a customer, is the importance of advertising and efficient use of commercial printing. The judicial spending of money for advertising is one of the surest means of winning that important person—your customer.

You can't keep a business secret and expect to win customers. All things being equal—success comes to the businessman who understands and practices the elementary principle that you've got to spend money to make money. And spending money for newspaper advertising is as important as your stock in trade toward the winning of your customer.

LIQUOR AND TAVERN MEN OF 3 COUNTIES MEET MONDAY NIGHT

At a gathering which thirty years ago would have been called a bootleggers convention, tavern owners and liquor dealers of the three mountain counties of Nevada, Placer and Sierra, met at the Elks club in Grass Valley on Monday night.

Principal speaker was Jerrold L. Seawell, Roseville, member of the state board of equalization, third district, who instructed the 150 or more liquor dealers as to proper practice in food service and handling prospective customers believed to be minors.

John Raffeto, Auburn, presided as master of ceremonies with Edward Cocking, Brownie Clemo and Bill Larkin, all of Grass Valley, in charge of arranging the meeting.

Copious quantities of thickly sliced prime roast beef was the piece de resistance of the dinner amply washed down with copious quantities of liquor—of course.

Seawell pointed out that if licensees observed the primary rules of the alcohol beverage control act they would never be in trouble.

"The state board of equalization is not a police body," he said, "but a cooperative group. It is not intended to get you into trouble but to help you keep out of trouble."

Seawell pointed out the board of equalization is the greatest tax collecting body in the state, but that 10 percent of its job is directed toward enforcing liquor laws. He added that enforcement of the liquor laws is not solely the function of the state board, but is also the function of local police officers.

Seawell specifically urged that licensees serve food and at least one hot dish and added that the burden of proof as to age of the purchaser of liquor or beverages was upon the licensee.

Seawell sharply rapped sale of liquor to minors and told the tavern owner group that it was not enough to examine the age listed on a driver's license. He urged they also check eye and hair color and insist the person in question submit evidence other than a driver's license.

One licensee asked Seawell, "What if an obviously adult man buys three drinks at the bar, and then takes them to a booth for consumption by a couple of 17 year old girls?"

Don Greeley, Marysville, chief enforcement officer of this area for the board of equalization, introduced his local officers, Joe Thompson, Grass Valley; Warren Jones, Roseville, and John Ringold, Auburn.

Other speakers were Vernon Stoll, district attorney; Carl J. Tobiassen, Nevada county supervisor from the first district; Assemblyman Francis Lindsay, of Loomis; and State Senator Harold Johnson, Roseville.

NEW PAY SCHEDULE FOR DISTRICT NURSES

New pay schedule for private duty nurses was presented at a regular meeting of District No. 48, California State Nurses Association, held at Nevada City high school, with 23 members and two guests attending.

District nurses contributed to a fund for repair of war damaged nurses' home at Bordeaux, France.

Mrs. Lucille Robbins, Weimar sanatorium, was chosen to represent the district at headquarters in San Francisco as a member of the committee on nominations.

Reports of the state convention in Los Angeles were presented by two delegates, Mrs. Elizabeth Cullen, DeWitt, and Mrs. Dallas Fellerson, Grass Valley.

Adopted at the convention was the decision to accept retired or non-working nurses into the organization as associate members.

Next meeting will be a Christmas party to be held in Auburn.

REDMEN DANCE AT BANNER TOMORROW

Wyoming Tribe No. 49, Order of Redmen, will hold a dance tomorrow night at Banner Grange hall, McCourtney road, south of Grass Valley.

The committee has secured a good dance band for the evening and music will start at 9 and last until the neighborhood of 2 a.m.

Refreshments will be served.

California 4-H Champs Go to Chicago

Marilyn Hansen — Rene Goedhard — Perle Mainwaring — Betty Elliott

STATE championship honors for 1950 have been won by four 4-H Club members for outstanding work in the National Canning, Clothing, Food Preparation and Girls' Record programs. Their awards are all-expense trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 26-30. Brief outlines of their records follow:

A high spot in 4-H Club work was reached by Marilyn Hansen, 15, of Hollister, when she was named state winner in the Food Preparation program. A 4-H'er for three years, Marilyn has completed 10 projects, specializing in clothing, food preservation and home furnishing. She became expert in meal planning, having outstanding success with short breads, one-dish salads, and meat-stock soup in various combinations. Marilyn also experimented with different styles of containers for school and picnic lunches, with interesting and beneficial results. Marilyn's club activities included helping to organize a new 4-H Club of 15 members in 1949, which completed 35 projects. She has consistently helped younger members with their cooking and sewing problems. Her trip was furnished by Kelvinator Corp., of Detroit, Michigan.

It doesn't cost very much for Rene Goedhard, 21, of Pasadena, to be smartly dressed because she is handy with a needle, and knows how to buy patterns and fabrics. As state 4-H clothing winner, Rene has to her credit 82 garments made during 10 years in club work. She was judged champion 4-H clothing girl at the 1949 fair for her 21-piece complete college wardrobe. She has made and remodeled clothes for other girls, as well as sewing for her mother during spare time. This has helped towards her college expenditures. Rene has served as president and leader of her club, and is now in her junior year at the University of California. Her trip was provided by the Spool Cotton Co.

Long range food preservation plans won for Perle Mainwaring, 21, of Visalia, high honors in the Canning Achievement program. A 4-H'er for 11 years, she has completed 18 projects, and canning has been her favorite. Because she learned how to select and preserve fruits, vegetables, poultry and meat produced on the farm, Perle has been able to reduce the family food bill considerably. Use of home-canned foods also provided well-balanced meals the year round. She has canned 970 quarts of foods herself, and has assisted family and friends on good methods learned through 4-H. Perle has had excellent results with bread and butter pickles, jellies and grape juice. Her gift boxes, attractively filled with home canned delicacies, are welcomed by her friends at Christmas time. Kerr Glass provided Perle's trip to Chicago.

Betty Elliott, 17, of Orange, was selected as the 4-H'er with the most outstanding Girls' Record in California. She had just completed her eighth year in club work when she received this trip award, donated by Montgomery Ward. Food preservation is a special favorite with Betty, along with clothing, home improvement and food preparation. She has completed 25 projects, canning 800 jars of food and freezing 49 pounds. The young homemaker has sewn 70 garments, made 21 home improvements and has helped to plan, prepare and serve the family meals. Betty has won hign honors on her many exhibits. She also demonstrated before audiences totaling more than 6,000 and was named County champion demonstrator in 1950. Betty serves as the leader of her local club.

CHRISTMAS SEALS PAY FOR TB CAMPAIGNS

Christmas seals which are appearing this week in the mail boxes of county residents are being sold to finance the 1951 program of the Nevada County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The little stickers which may be used on envelopes or packages are a symbol of the American people's organized fight against a deadly communicable disease — tuberculosis — which was the leading cause of death in this country at the time of the first seal sale.

Since then, millions of lives have been saved from tuberculosis, and today the disease has been forced down from first to seventh place on the list of leading causes of death.

Each envelope mailed out by the association to a resident contains two sheets of stickers, at $1 a sheet.

The association would like to clarify its previous request that seals be returned if the recipient does not wish to purchase them.

Sand, pumice and volcanic ash are the only abrasives produced in quantity in California.

Telephone service is still a bargain...for since 1940, rates have gone up much less than the cost of living.

GOOD FRIEND OF THE FAMILY BUDGET

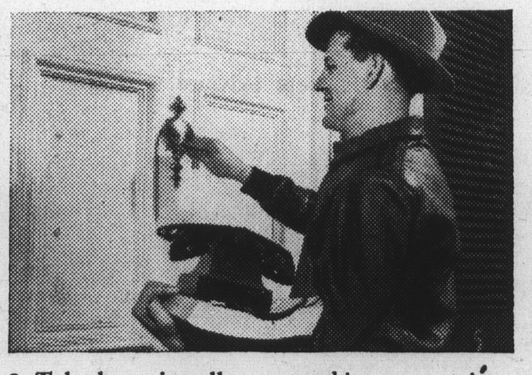
1. Seems like the prices of most things you buy have about doubled, in the last ten years. Among the standout exceptions is your telephone service. There have been rate increases, of course, to help meet increased costs of furnishing service...higher wages, higher prices for materials, higher costs generally. But telephone rates have gone up far less than most other things. And that's only part of the story.



2. Telephone installers are making your service a better all-around bargain, too. When you buy a pound of something, you still get sixteen ounces...although the price may have doubled. Twelve items still make a dozen. But not so with telephone service. Your telephone dollars buy, on the average, twice as many available connections as ten years ago...for we've more than doubled the system in that time.

3. Today you can call more of the people you want to call.. many more people can call you. And the calls you get are often more important than the calls you make. Yet average telephone rates have gone up less than half as much as the cost of living generally. They're up much less than our costs of providing service. It all comes down to this: Today telephone service can be purchased for fewer hours of work than in 1940. Your telephone is a mighty good friend of the family budget.

TRUCKEE TAXPAYERS VIEW BOOSTED RATE WITH INDIGNATION

Multiplying current assessed valuation of property in the Truckee sanitary district by four in order to raise the tax beyond the legal 40 cent rate for the district increased tax bills of the area by a huge percentage this year.

This increase added to a nominal raise by the county to care for the new setup in the old age and welfare department brought the tax to an equivalent of $7.18 per $100 assessed valuation in the sanitary district.

Receipt of the bills is causing considerable discussion among district taxpayers who indignantly express themselves as displeased with the program and are seeking means of relief in the future.

Fred Morris, member and secretary of the sanitary district directorate, explained that no protests had been made when the board decided upon the assessment plan. He said the increase would result in something between $6,000 and $10,000 being raised.

Of this amount, Morris said, approximately 30 percent will be used for ordinary maintenance and 70 percent will go toward sewage plant treatment, a demand made by the state board of health. He added the last bond of $700 outstanding against the district also will be paid off.

Relative to a new Allis-Chalmers AC5 loader and bulldozer which the district purchased and which has been the subject of some controversy, Morris said the monthly lease payments have been reduced to $132 since the district sold the garbage collection franchise for $108.50 a month and allowed this income to be applied on equipment payments.

A second piece of equipment, leased from Nevada county at a rate of $500 per year for a period of five years, must also be financed from the taxes of the district.

This equipment, Morris said, was secured primarily for repairing and maintaining the sewage disposal plant.

COLUMNIST FINDS RUNNING HOUSE NOT AS SIMPLE AS HE HAD OFTEN TOLD HIS GOOD WIFE THAT IT WAS

The following article is from a recent issue of the Auburn Journal and may be appreciated by a few misunderstood women.

NOTHING VENTURED . . . NOTHING GAINED—I'm going to try something that I've advocated to my wife for a long time. Every time I open my mouth on the subject of running a house, I get a dish thrown at me, but now as she's gone for a few weeks, the two boys and I will try my method of how to keep house and hold down a job at the same time . . . (without all the hullaballoo a woman makes over it.)

It's going to be very simple. The boys and I have it all worked out. We'll keep the house nice and clean, we have our work allotted and when it's finished, we'll have a lot of time on our hands. I'm supposed to send the laundry out, but I won't. We'll wash it ourselves. I've found out the vacuum cleaner is a wonderful gadget, and it'll pick up anything except golf balls, newspapers and dirty socks. We will cut our bed making time down to seconds. This going from one side to the other is unnecessary. All three of us make a bed at once. One at the foot, the other two at the head. We all grab the sheets and blankets at the same time, spread them out and tuck them in and you're done. I'm going to have to do something about dish washing though, nobody wants to do it. Maybe if I cut down to a minimum the dishes and pans we use, or wash a pan as soon as I'm through with it, or maybe I can ease in some paper plates and cups.

WE'RE OFF!—We started on our own Sunday afternoon. First I asked the boys what they'd like to do and when they said "Huntin'," we got the guns, jackets and took off. We stopped at Colfax and had a milkshake and a sandwich . . . (easy to get) and then hunted without seeing anything more dangerous than chipmunks. The youngest kept up a chatter, "What would you do if you saw a bear coming right at you, would you shoot it?" "I don't know where I am, do ya think we're lost. What would we do if we're lost, I'm thirsty, I want a drink" . . . "Gee! . . . that's a high hill, I don't wanta climb that . . . would you shoot a doe? . . . a fawn? . . . a buck? . . . where would you shoot 'im? . . . there? . . . why not in the head? . . . would he be dead? Oh, Gosh, I fell down, I didn't mean to make so much noise! Why can deer hear you so easy? Cause they got such big ears?" . . . "Dad . . . I'm tired, let's sit down." And so he goes, on and on and on and on and on and on . . .

On the way home, I said, "Boys, this being Sunday, and as how Sunday is a holiday, we'll eat out tonight and go to a show, how's that?" We stopped at a restaurant near Blue Canyon and all they wanted was a cheeseburger nd coke. The restaurant had a television set going and we watched the B-B Barbecue Boys or something like that demonstrate how to make a saddle for your pony . . . very enlightening, especially when the cow girl let the horse kiss her for making such a bee-utiful saddle for him.

END OF A PERFECT DAY—In Auburn we checked all the shows, and turned up our noses at all of them including the one in Colfax, three in Roseville and one in Lincoln, so patronized the home town cinema, which we should have done in the first place and stopped a lot of arguing.

Monday morning I got up at six (that's when my wife always gets up) and made lunches. Put the coffee on and had a cigarette. I shaved, had another cup of coffee and another cigarette. I let the two dogs back into the house after rushing them outside earlier and decided to fix them a good breakfast. I got out the canned horse meat and mixed it with packaged dog fiod and water. Maggie and Bodacious loved it. I got the boys up. They dressed and got their own breakfast as I reminded them of their duties to the welfare of the home.

We didn't eat too hearty or well the day before, so after work I bought som big steaks and with a sadly deflated wallet, I took the steaks home and told the boys we'd have to go light the rest of the week on comic books, shows, or eating because they were going to eat steaks that cost $4.30. I had misjudged a little, the steaks were so big, you couldn't see the plate, and the potatoes cooked too much and were mushy. I put the vegetable which had gotten as cold as a barefooted eskimo in the oven to heat and the paper napkin that was to sop up the juice caught fire and burned up the vegetable. I hurriedly or horridly, whipped up a hearts of lettuce salad to replace the charred vegetable. The chocolate milk the kids were making, boiled over on the stove, and the youngest poured water into the milk to cool it, and the other wouldn't drink it . . . anyway the steaks were perfect, and I dumped a can of mushrooms over them. As I called the boys to eat and stop fooling with chocolate milk, I discovered them in the refrigerator about ready to sample the concoction that I had mixed for the dogs.

AFTER DINNER TOPICS—There was some homework to be done, and reluctantly the oldest allowed as how he'd do it, and the youngest just had to take his bath then, so I got struck with the dirty dishes. I found dishes all over the house and I thought I'd never get done. There were dog dishes on the porch, glasses in the bedrooms, silverware outside, pans in the wash trays and dishes in the bathroom. A box of B-B's scattered on the linoleum didn't help, and the youngest used all the hot water for his bath. The dog chewed a hole in the box of soap and naturally when I picked it up, soap powder covered the floor and me. I was going to mop the floor anyway and instead of gathering up the soap powder in a little pile and picking it up, I just wet it down with the mop and started scrubbing. I got so much lather on the floor, I felt like I was standing in a bubble bath. After I got the floor cleaned and the dishes done and ready to relax, the boys appeared magically and announced that they were now ready to help.

When I get on to the routine of housework, things just can't work out this way, and that goes for the boys too . . . this thing can be whipped and we'll do it.

Stick around, ladies, and we'll turn this column into a "Helpful Hints for Housewives Page." A place for everything, and everything in its place . . . No bother, no fuss, no muss, with just the three of us.
